A Curated Collection of Unique Products Crafted from Upcycled Materials taking care of business

About TCB Remake

The TCB Remake programme trains previously unemployed seamstresses to repurpose excess materials such as banners and surplus textiles into functional, design-led products while building their own small businesses.

All styles are subject to fabric availability at the time of production, and stock is limited based on materials on hand.

This is not mass production.
It is purposeful, circular design.

Looking for:

- Event merchandise that stands out?
- Corporate gifts aligned to sustainability goals?
- Unique, circular products to sell?

We can custom-design products for your brand, event, or campaign.

Meet one of our Makers

Balisa Nzululeka, 37, from Langa Township in Cape Town, is a mother of four and a proud entrepreneur in the TCB Remake Programme. She joined in July 2024 with a vision to grow her business and gain the skills to turn her ideas into reality.

"I have learnt business skills, upcycling techniques, technical sewing skills and how to really market my own products. My sewing business focuses on upcycled products, and I also have a Tshisanyama (braai place) in the location serving customers in my community.

My family's life has improved. We have better finances through our businesses. I can support them and they are proud of my achievements. My dream is to expand my business. I want to create more jobs and inspire others in business and also leave a legacy behind."

Her message to aspiring entrepreneurs:
Start small, stay patient, and never stop learning.

Start the Conversation
